Give yourself no rest, until you know something by experience of real Christian love. Go and learn of Him who is meek and lowly of heart and ask Him to teach you how to love. Ask the Lord Jesus to put His Spirit within you, to take away the old heart, to give you a new nature, to make you know something of His mind. Cry to Him night and day for grace and give Him no rest until you feel something of what I have been describing in this paper. Happy indeed will your life be when you really understand "walking in love." - J.C. Ryle

Could we with ink the ocean fill,
And were the skies of parchment made,
Were every stalk on earth a quill,
And every man a scribe by trade;
To write the love of God above
Would drain the ocean dry;
Nor could the scroll contain the whole,
Though stretched from sky to sky.

Frederick Lehman, who wrote the words to the hymn, The Love of God, tells us that the above verse had reportedly “been found penciled on the wall of a patient’s room in an insane asylum after he had been carried to his grave.” While it is only supposition that the man was the one who translated or adapted the words to leave us these well-known lines, if the account is true it shows in any case that he highly esteemed the message.
