Hymn of Reflection Come Behold the Wondrous Mystery

It was by one man's sin that we all fell through the first Adam. Does anyone object to the justice of that? I pray you, do not object to what is your only hope. If you and I had each one sinned for himself or herself apart from Adam, our case would probably have been hopeless, like the case of the fallen angels, who sinned individually, and fell never to be set up again, but inasmuch as we fell representatively in Adam, it prepared the way for us to rise representatively in the second Adam, Christ Jesus our Lord and Savior. As I fell by another, I can rise by another; as my ruin was caused by the first man, Adam, my restoration can be brought about by the second Man, the Lord from heaven.

Christ Surrendered All

This morning, we will sing Christ Surrendered All. The hymn lyrics, written by Zac Hicks in 2014, offers a reorientation of the classic hymn / worship song, "I Surrender All." Mr. Hicks wrote an article for the Gospel Coalition in which he said there was an overload of "I'm surrendering it all to You, Jesus" in our worship songs. He argued this phrase tends to put way too much spotlight on what we do for God rather than what Christ has done for us.

Notice the difference in lyrics:

I surrender all

VS

Christ, You surrendered all

Worldly pleasures all forsaken

Take me, Jesus, take me now

VS

Worldly pleasures I was seeking

Still, Lord, You were seeking me

In addition to the message of the song, which really is the raw Gospel, we strive to reinforce and re-preach that same message:

"It's not about what I do, Lord,
but about what you have done for me."
